

CONTENTS

Number 1

SPECIAL ISSUE SELECTED PAPERS OF THE SIXTH INTERNATIONAL ANNUAL CONFERENCE OF THE PEG GROUP

v Preface

vi PEG 91 Program Committee

D. Whitelock, J. Taylor,
T. O'Shea, E. Scanlon,
R. Sellman, P. Clark and
C. O'Malley

1 Challenging models of elastic collisions with a computer simulation

Rolland Viau and Jacques Larivée

11 Learning tools with hypertext: an experiment

Ronald A. Singer

17 Circuit II—a conversational graphical interface

Hyacinth S. Nwana

27 An approach to developing intelligent tutors in mathematics

Rod Nason

45 PRODIGY: diagnosis and remediation in the domain of common fractions

P. David Mitchell and Peter D. Grogono

55 Modelling techniques for tutoring systems

Yibing Li

63 Finding reusable components in Smalltalk-80

Julie-Ann Sime and R. R. Leitch

73 A specification methodology for intelligent training systems

Patricia Fung

81 Do-it-yourself student modelling

Simon P. Davies
and Adrian M. Castell

89 Embodying theory in intelligent tutoring systems: an evaluation of plan-based accounts of programming skill

Alberta Bertin, Fabio Buciol
and Cristina Lanza

97 Intelligent training systems in industrial environments: approach and solutions to high risk task training

Jonathan H. Briggs, Chris Tompsett and Nick Oates	105 Using rules to guide learners through hypertext
Paul Brna	111 Teaching Prolog techniques
Geoff Cumming, Roland Sussex and Samantha Cropp	119 Learning English as a Second Language: towards the "Mayday" Intelligent Educational System
R. J. Hendley, C. D. Whittington and N. Jurascheck	127 Hypermedia generation from domain representations
Pentti Hietala	133 Teaching AI through Prolog programming techniques
Dominique Py	141 Geometry problem solving with Mentoniezh

Number 2

Marianne G. Handler	147 Preparing new teachers to use computer technology: perceptions and suggestions for teacher educators
David R. Mottram, Philip H. Rowe and Ian M. Stanley	157 ENPHARM: self-scoring computer-assisted learning for pharmacists
Philip H. Rowe, Rosemary Baker and David R. Mottram	163 PHARMLEX: a computer-based training program on pharmacy law
Lily Shashaani	169 Gender-based differences in attitudes toward computers
Sheung-Lun Hung, Lam-For Kwok and Raymond Chan	183 Automatic programming assessment
Vasilios Makrakis	191 Gender and computing in schools in Japan: the "we can, I can't" paradox
John Todman and Gail Dick	199 Primary children and teachers' attitudes to computers
Book Reviews	205

Number 3

Roy Rada, Sharon Acquah, Beverley Baker and Phillip Ramsey	225 Collaborative learning and the MUCH system
---	--

Anthony Anderson, Andrew Tolmie, Erica McAteer and Ayal Demissie	235	Software style and interaction around the microcomputer
Leslie J. Francis	251	Measuring attitude toward computers among undergraduate college students: the affective domain
Mark A. Horney	257	Case studies of navigational patterns in constructive hypertext
Chuansong Wu, Chunming Wen and Lin Wu	271	A microcomputer-controlled welder training system
Software Review	275
Book Reviews	277

Number 4

Karen Biraimah	283	The non-neutrality of educational computer software
Kwok-Wing Lai	291	Minimal computer technologies and learner-centred environments: some New Zealand experience
Miky Ronen, Bat-Sheva Eylon, Ofra Rivlin and Uri Ganiel	299	Designing and using an open graphic interface for instruction in geometrical optics
Editorial	iii
M. Er	311	Structured programming techniques: a study of relative complexity—some programming considerations
R. Wayne Headrick	315	Structured programming complexity revisited (a response to the paper by M. Er)
Book Reviews	317
Foreword	v	Papers from the IEA study "Computers in Education" (Comped)
Willem J. Pelgrum and Tjeerd Plomp	323	The worldwide use of computers: a description of main trends
Alfons ten Brummelhuis and Tjeerd Plomp	333	Lessons from two Dutch projects for the introduction of computers in schools
Henry Jay Becker	341	Decision making about computer acquisition and use in American schools

Ingeborg Janssen Reinen and Tjeerd Plomp

Announcements

353 Some gender issues in educational computer use: results of an international comparative survey

I COMPUGRAPHICS '93

II EDUGRAPHICS '93

